

Great Britain: Excess Mortality Among Children After Vaccine Rollout

December 1, 2021 4 min read

Deaths of children have been on the rise since the UK started vaccinating teenagers from the age of 12 and older. The risk-benefit analysis raises serious doubts about injecting this age group with the experimental drug.

On September 20, the British national health service NHS announced that the coronavirus vaccine would be rolled out for children aged 12 to 15. In part of the biggest vaccination drive in the country's health service history, nearly three million children can receive a first dose of the Pfizer vaccine. According to the NHS, jabs started in hundreds of schools (week 38), with the injection program rolling out to others in the coming weeks.

Increase In Deaths

Following the government's vaccine rollout, the UK's Office of National Statistics shows that the number of deaths between week 38 and week 41 of 2021 among children aged 10-14 were 62% higher than the five-year average for the number of deaths in this age group during the same period. Furthermore, the increase in deaths began when children started receiving the experimental "vaccine."

The trend of increasing deaths among children is continuing. More children in the age group 5-14 years died in week 43 of 2021 than usual. Data from the UK Health Security Agency (UKHSA) recently revealed that so many children died at the end of October that there was excess mortality.

Is There A Connection

The decision to jab children over twelve came after the four Chief Medical Officers (CMO's) of the United Kingdom advised the UK Government to offer the Pfizer injection to them. The government decided to go ahead with the injection program despite the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) previously stating that they could not support universal vaccination of children.

Is it just a coincidence that deaths among children have since increased by 62% (up to 400% in vulnerable children) against the five-year average?

The CMO admits they do not know the adverse effects the injection will have on children stating, we "acknowledge that there is considerable uncertainty regarding the magnitude of the potential harms."

When considering whether or not to vaccinate children of that age, the CMO states that the jab will "help prevent classroom outbreaks and further disruptions to education." However, their reasoning has no factual basis; as the jab has shown, it continuously fails to prevent infection or transmission. Moreover, even Pfizer does not make the CMO's claim. Therefore, the government's argument that the benefits outweigh the risks is invalid.

Furthermore, the jab is risky for children's well-being. In May 2021, Pfizer published a 37-page "factsheet" on the safety and use of their vaccine, from which it emerges that 79% of vaccinated children over the age of 12 could expect side effects. Unfortunately, the government ignored Pfizer's, and the media refuse to report on their admission because it does not seem to fit their current "political narrative."

Will the government investigate why there has been a massive increase in deaths from the five-year average since teens received the jab? Will they immediately stop the rollout of this experimental injection to children if there is a direct connection?

Healthy Children And Teenagers Have Virtually No Risk

The Exposé reports, in the past 18 months, 1 in 312,000 children and teenagers (under the age of 19) with a pre-existing condition have died from coronavirus. While in 20 months, only 1 in 1.1 million children died of the coronavirus, who had no pre-existing conditions.

Public Health England data shows that of all of the UK's Delta coronavirus deaths (from February 1, 2021, to September 12, 2021), 71% were vaccinated. One hundred sixty-six deaths were recorded among the partially vaccinated population, 722 deaths among the unvaccinated population, and 1,613 deaths among the fully vaccinated population.

There is no justification for giving an experimental mRNA gene-therapy injection to children.
